Fastest growing job search engine launched in the UK: uk.linkup.com

London, England – LinkUp, the job search engine, announced the launch of its widely acclaimed job search engine in the United Kingdom. The site, found at uk.linkup.com, is the second international site for the job search engine following the launch of canada.linkup.com in October of 2009.

The new international site includes job listings throughout the United Kingdom that are only found on local company and employer websites. As a result of this entirely unique approach to job listings, jobs on LinkUp.com, canada.linkup.com, and uk.linkup.com are always current, often unadvertised anywhere else, and contain no fake jobs or scam listings.

“We continue to grow our business by delivering the highest quality job search engine in the UK,” commented President & CEO Toby Dayton. “We’re excited to be able to offer job seekers and employers everywhere a vastly better alternative to the outdated resources currently available on the web today.”

LinkUp’s job search engine allows users to easily and conveniently search job listings from thousands of corporate websites by job title, keyword(s), company name, industry, and location. Because LinkUp does not allow anyone to post jobs directly onto the site, there are no old jobs, work-at-home scams, phishing jobs, identity theft postings, or listings from recruiters, staffing companies, search firms, or headhunters. As well, because LinkUp indexes jobs from a single source, the employer’s career portal on their company website, there are no duplicate jobs.

Job seekers and employers can get to LinkUp’s international sites by clicking the ‘International Sites’ link at the bottom of linkup.com or by directly going to canada.linkup.com and uk.linkup.com.
